5 Years of Civic Leadership in Ayiti
A letter from Nedgine Paul Deroly
Co-Founder & CEO

The honor of my lifetime has been to stand alongside my sisters and brothers, my Anseye Pou Ayiti family, to ignite a movement for educational justice in Haiti. We as a people are the descendants of freedom fighters – who proved to the world in 1804 (and several times since then) what it looks like when we stand for justice. My parents instilled a deep pride in identity, history & culture. I carry that with me every day, and it is the foundation on which I took a leap of faith 5 years ago in officially launching the Anseye Pou Ayiti movement.

But I am not Anseye Pou Ayiti. As stated by the great Maya Angelou: “I come as one but stand as 10,000.” I am one face of many, the many who make up our incredible Anseye Pou Ayiti team and family. We are Anseye Pou Ayiti. We are teacher-leaders, alumni ambassadors, students, staff and board, parents, and community members. Now over 5,000 strong, we have joined forces to say that Haiti will be mighty once again. And this time, educational equity will be the rallying cry of our next cultural revolution.

My most sincere gratitude to all who stand with us – who have stood with us when this movement was just a dream. This is a generational movement, built on the foundation of Toussaint, Dessalines, Catherine Flon, Charlemagne Péralte, and so many women & men who still fight today. I am in awe of our power as a people. With collective leadership, excellence will become our norm. Anseye Pou Ayiti will contribute to changing the way the world sees Haiti – from rescue myths to radical hope, from outside in to inside out, from brain drain to education equity as a lever of social change. There is more to come and the time is now.

Thank you all for standing in solidarity with us!
Anseye Pou Ayiti is working with Haitian communities to create a network of civic leaders and build an equitable education system based on shared history, values, and vision.

2020 Goal

Equip 20,000 civic leaders for the 4 million children of Ayiti.

Impact
Community at the Center

We recruit from within our communities, we partner with existing schools & teachers in our communities, we conduct our professional development workshops in partnership with local allies. We believe culture, customs & community point the way forward.
Scale as Depth

By investing in 5 model rural communities in Haiti – what will become 5 "proof points" – we are equipping teachers, students, parents, school directors, and community allies as the civic leaders necessary to lead this movement.
Teaching Transformed

APA is transforming the culture of teaching & learning across Haiti, including:

- Integration of Haitian Kreyòl (mother tongue) into instructional practice.
- An emphasis on student comprehension & critical thinking instead of memorization.
- Collaborative group work among students for deeper understanding of content.
- Ongoing data analysis to ensure positive student outcomes.
- Making learning relevant – linking subjects to reality of the community and equipping students as civic leaders.
Haitian teacher-leaders have been recruited for the APA fellowship.

Qualified candidates applied for the 65 fellowship slots available in 2018.

I stand with APA as a teacher-leader not only to transform the education system but also to develop citizen-leaders who are responsible and capable, evolving their own leadership for their communities and our nation.

Anousse Prospère, Alumni Ambassador, 2015 Cohort
7000+ Students reached so far across 65 partner schools

85% average passing rate across APA teacher-leaders’ classrooms – double the rate of the national average.
The community has the solutions. Community members know what their children deserve, and they have a vision for what and who the children can become tomorrow.

Bendjimy Pierre, Teacher-Leader, 2017 Cohort
90% of our alumni ambassadors have remained in education.

8 have been promoted to positions of school leadership.
